

Quality Results Begin with Quality Recording Solutions

System X Design
Covington, GA 30014

To Whom It May Concern:

We were looking to revamp our website and become more active on social media sites. We were also looking for an option that made it easy for our staff to be able to edit and update the website on an ongoing basis. We looked at a few companies, but System X Design offered a more comprehensive solution than any of the others. In addition to offering the most comprehensive solution, System X Design was also one of the most competitively priced solutions.

Richard and his staff redesigned our website and added all the social media plugins we requested. They designed the website to be mobile friendly so it can be viewed from a smart phone or tablet as well. We were very pleased with the professionalism exhibited by Richard and his staff. They not only accomplished what we asked of them, but they also offered advice about how to improve the site that we never thought of. They truly went above and beyond our expectations.

Once the new website was up and running, Richard trained our employees on how to use the software to update and maintain the website. A month after the training was completed; he still took the time to answer any questions we had about maintaining the site.

I would recommend System X Design to anyone who is interested in building a website from scratch or revamping their current website.
